Begin, Habib to meet on missile crisis today

TEL AVIV. June 17 (A.P.) — U.S. envoy Philip Habib arrived from Damascus today to resume talks with Israel on defusing the Lebanese missile crisis.

Mr. Habib was to meet with Prime Minister Menachem Begin tomorrow morning. He arrived aboard a U.S. government executive jet and as usual declined to answer reporters' questions.

It was the first time the envoy has been bere since he suspended his shuttling May 27 and returned to Washington to brief President Ronald Reagan. He returned to the Middle East last week. The resumption of Mr. Habib's mission shifted Israeli attention back to the simmering missile crisis after it was riveted for 10 days on the international controversy around the Israeli bombing of Iraq's nuclear reactor. Israel is demanding that Syria remove the anti-aircraft missiles in moved into the Lebanese border area seven weeks ago to bamper Israeli air intervention in fighting between Syrian and rightist forces. On Sunday Mr. Begin told a cheering crowd at an election rally that if Mr. Habib did not get the missiles out, Israel would. "Raful and Yanosh are ready," declared Mr. Begin, using the nicknames of Israeli generals Rafael Eitan and Avigdor Ben-Gal, the top army men involved in the missile dis-

However, the daily Yediot Aharonot reported that Israel did not intend to limit the time at Mr. Habib's disposal, at least not until Israel's June 30 national election.

Mr. Begin's office said the premier's tough words Sunday should not be read as an ultimatum.

University of Jordan graduation

An appeal by Hussein: 'Let's unify our ranks'

AMMAN, June 17 (Petra) — His Majesty King Hussein today called on the Arab Nation to unify its ranks in the face of dangers threatening it and to resolve to regain its rights and freedom.

Addressing the 16th graduating class of the University of Jordan this afternoon at Al Hussein Youth City, the King said the struggle imposed by Zionism and imperialism on the Arabs in their greater homeland is a fateful struggle, with the enemy aiming to undermine the Arab identity, future, culture and existence.

King Hussein hailed Iraq for heroically and valiantly defending the rights of the Arab Nation in its nine-month-old border war with Iran. He also hailed Jordan's kinsmen in the occupied Arab areas for their steadfastness and resistance to occupation.

The King told the 1,983 graduates that the university is a symbol of positive national change, which should be a gradual process without surprise leaps. He also pointed out the significance of striking an equilibrium between quantity and quality in education.

King Hussein also called on contemporary Arab and Islamic universities to implant the spirit of belonging and loyalty in their students and to contribute postively to world knowledge.

The King said that our universities should be open to the achievements of other cultures and their spirit of innovation and creativity. He also called for benefiting from the experiences of. other nations and cultures and choosing from them what is appropriate and suitable for our own situation.

King Hussein affirmed that the Arab Nation has a long educational history and traditions which were the torch that guided many nations since the 12th cen-

He said that since the founding of our contemporary universities. they have been the targets of the 'flow of various currents and philosophies' sometimes contradictory.

"These philosophies were based on the national traditions of these countries and were the product of their economic and social conditions, responding to them and developing along with them," the King said.

"However, these philosophies are not in line with our way of life and the needs of our life, and they inflict the gravest damage on our students and on their educational and behavioural well-being," the King said. He continued, "So far we have not had an educational philosophy based on a comprehenisve outlook capable of preserving the spirit of our culture and civilisation and developing our self-strength, virtues and values without isolating us from the process of the scientific development of mankind."

King Hussein added, "We call on contemporary Arab and Islamic universities to draw up the broad lines of the university theory for the Arabs and Muslims, to clarify its principles and the foundations of its academic system. because such a theory with its philosophical, comprehensive outlook and system, properly applied. is the only means to link our nation to its roots, land and environment and implant the spirit of affiliation and lovalty in its citizens. It is also the only means for the real advancement of knowledge in our universities and any positive contribution to knowledge in the world." The King affirmed the sig-nificance of linking university education with the comprehensive planning of manpower and the needs of development and production in the country,

He said when these goals are achieved, the university would become a "centre of leadership in the community because it would be responding to the needs of the community" and offering sol-utions for its problems.

King Hussein declared that the steadfastness and resistance of our kinsmen in the occupied Arab areas is the symbol of the "determination of the Palestinian people to return home and resist the Israeli aggression and usurpation until they are eliminated and until the Palestinian people win victory and regain their full rights."

University President Dr. Abdul Salam Al Majali earlier made a speech praising the fforts of the King and his support and concern for the educational process in the country.

Labour minister hits Israel at ILO talks

GENEVA, June 17 (Petra) — Minister of Labour Dr. Jawad Al Anani today denounced Israel's settlements and labour policy in Palestine and the occupied territories in a conference here of the International Labour Organisation (ILO).

Dr. Anani said last year's ILO decisions critical of Israeli practices were not carried out completely, since Israel has defied all laws and continues to do so by establishing settlements in occupied Jerusalem, the West Bank and Palestine. Israel's confiscation of land in the West Bank and its interference in the activities of Arab labour unions there also defy all intemational laws, he pointed out.

Dr. Anani noted last year's ILO decisions require that the org-anisation help Arab citizens in the occupied lands in every way to improve their economic conditions. The Jordanian delegation demands that the ILO overcome its inefficiency in this field, he said, asking the body to take effective action to carry out its previous decisions.

He noted that the ILO has been prevented from carrying out all its responsibilities by financial difficulties, "but Jordan's delegation and I believe that the organisation must do whatever it can to implement its aims and to achieve its goals."

there are 161 settlements in the occupied territories and that about 34 per cent of the Arab land there has been confiscated by the Israeli authorities.

He asked whether the ILO mission has clarified the oppressive measures Arab labourers and citizens have to endure in the occupied land. He also pointed out that Israeli authorities have prevented Arab companies from registering in Arab courts, and have made them register in the Israeli upper court, an act aimed at circumventing application of the Jordanian labour law in the West Bank.

Dr. Anani also discussed Israel's racial discriminauon against people in the West Bank.

He asked the participants at the conference to set a special day expressing ILO's solidarity with the people and labourers of Palestine, as a proof of the ILO's backing of the Palestinians' struggle and its rejection of Israel's aggressive policy there.

Dr. Anani then discussed his ministry's plans to improve the conditions of the Jordanian labour

He said he hoped the ILO would be able to carry out all its projects to overcome poverty and unemployment in many areas of the world. A new international economic system built on equality and justice for all people of the world would be the best solution for most socio-economic problems the world is facing today,. Dr. Anani said.

OAPEC: No decision Dr. Anani pointed out that to meet yet

KUWAIT, June 17 (A.P.) - A senior official of the Organisation of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) said today there had been no decision for an emergency meeting to discuss future action, should the United States veto the imposition of sanctions on Israel by the U.N. Security Council, for its attack on Iraq's nuclear reactor.

Mr. Abdul Aziz Al Watari was commenting on local press reports claiming OAPEC would meet in emergency session in such an eventuality.

"The organisation has not received a demand from any member state for such a meeting, though OAPEC is ready to confront Israel and the American arrogance," Mr. Al Watari was quoted as saying in an interview with the newspaper Al Siyasseh.

The organisation was still awaiting the outcome of the current Security Council debate, he was quoted as adding.

AMMAN — As sunset drew near on one of March's rare sunny days, the 25-year-old Taha Al Maghazi was still scraping and polishing a sheepskin stretched over two hand-made wooden rods -- a scene that reflected the traditional character of the sheepskin business in Jordan.

"I learned the craft five years ago as an apprentice with a professional sheepskin craftsman," said Mr. Maghazi, an Egyptian national who runs a workshop in the tiny town of Khirbet Al Soug, east of Amman, where sheepskins are economically important.

"When we receive the 'well-processed' fleeces from our Khirbet Al Song workshop, we make the designs and cuts according to our liking and upon the orders of the customers" he told the Jordan Times. The work he and his sons do on the sewing machines is complementary to

This is an original sheepskin piece, and this one is artificial." Mr. Maghazi said, pointing to two fur-lined jackets at his workshop.
To the untrained eye, the foreign-made jacket looks more handsome with its well-trimmed fur; but costumers should also consider the warmth, convenience and originality a hand-made piece adds to the jacket, to Mr. Maghazi

Mr. Tamimi seems unaffected by the idea of competition between his hand-made sheepskin items and foreign-made ones. He said that competition has been eased by the wide price differential between the two products. For example, he noted, a locally-made fur coat costs JD 40. in contrast to the JD 300 pricetag for an imported item.

While the designs constitute an important part of the craft, the preparation of the fleeces is more important, according to Mr. Tamimi. "If we don't have furs ready to cut and design, we'll be out of husiness," he said, "and in this regard we suffer from a shortage of trained people who know all the tec-. hniques of 'processing'." This. problem is due to the "tediousness" of the work, he said, and the fact that most of the people the workshop trained used to quit the cumstances we usually hire Egyptian people to do that joh," he

The tediousness of the process resides in the several steps which require fastidiousness and attention to detail, according to Mr. Maghazi. "We hring the fleece from the butcher through a special intermediary, then we scrape it with a knife and clean it with detergent and add a hleaching material to make it white," he exp-

A fleece will then be cured condition for 15 hours on the average, exposed to the heat of the sun, and theo cleaned with hrine.

Despite the competition between foreign-made and local sheepskin products, and despite the shortage of trained labour, market conditions are satisfactory, Mr. Tamimi said that customers include Jordanians and foreign people "who have a sense of appreciation for hand-made original things." The market looks promising, he said.

Like most craftsmen in Jordan, Mr. Tamimi is not involved with the Jordan Handicrafts Development Centre Company, But he said that the centre occasiooally huys some of his products to fill customer's orders.

Also like most Jordanian craftsmen, Mr. Tamimi has not applied for any sort of aid from the Industrial Development Bank because he does not know anything about it.

ART REVIEW Adnan Yahya's show reveals nothing new

By Meg Abu Hamdan Special to the Jurdan Times

AMMAN, June 17 - For the review of Adnan Yahya's latesi exhibition at the Jordan Artists Association, please refer to the Jordan Times of Sunday, Dec. 7, 1980. There, you will find some complementary thoughts about Mr. Yahya's work, all of which are still valid. More importantly, all are still applicable, as Mr. Yahya has - not surprisingly in only six months -- achieved oothing new. Maybe his works are technically a little better, the hackgrounds more imaginative and he has used crowd scenes more often; hut basically the works, are so similar to the ones he displayed in December that they could be the same. Indeed one or two are, and if I am mistaken, I can hardly be

Unfortunately, Mr. Yahya has done himself more harm than good hy exhibiting again so soon. Our initial response -- instead of heing interested to see the new work of a good young artist -- was one of an incredulous "again, twice in six months!" And, arriving at the exhibition with the feeling that we would know what to expect, that response was definitely, confirmed,

If an artist is going to exhibit in the same place to the same audience twice in six months, then he must have achieved something new, different and original. It is not enough to have produced the optimum 30 pieces of work of the right standard. If Mr. Yahya is so interested in exhibiting his work. then he should take it to different audiences and places - like his native Irhid or even to a neighbouring Arah country (for example Iraq with whom there appears to be some sort of cultural exchange).

But instead of working to exhibit, Mr. Yahya should and must concentrate on developing his style, which in his case is worth developing. His figures, which when first seen in the context of his first exhibition were for a young artist a good attempt at rendering violent and anguished feelings, now appear as caricatures of these emotions. Further study (perhaps of the work of Francis Bacon and van Gogh -two masters of agonising emotional expression) would help Mr. Yahya achieve a more moviog conviction.

Finally the Jordan Artists Association should be held partly responsible for the criticism Mr. Yahya has recieved. As a noncommercial concern, the association should concentrate ondisplaying the successful development in originality and freshness of the Jordanian artists' work, rather than on their supply.

Rise, Ronald

IT IS SAD, really, to hear the president of the United States recite the cliches of Zionism in commenting on the Israeli attack against the Iraqi nuclear reactor. We would have thought that Israel's clear-cut violation of the conditions under which it received American arms might have prompted the president of the United States to rise above the senseless, endless cycle of accusation and counter-accusation that dominates Middle Eastern rhetoric. It is sad, really, to hear President Reagan defend the Israeli attack on the rationale that Iraq has never recognised Israel. This quality of thought would similarly allow Albania to attack the United States. Is this the kind of principle that Mr. Reagan believes should govern relations between sovereign states?

It is sad, really, to hear Mr. Reagan invoke Israel's sacred "security" concerns to condone the kind of Israeli militarism that makes its genuine security and acceptance in the Middle East more elusive than ever. Mr. Reagan, like all American officials, has to decide once and for all whether his job is to represent the best interests of his country and the peaceful aspirations of all people in the Middle East, or whether he is only a highly paid, docile apologist for an untempered Zionism lashing out against the people of the Arab World. Mr. Reagan is playing the fool when he talks in the same breath about a Middle East "peace process" and also about Israel's justification for its attack against Baghdad. A president is supposed to rise above such contradictions and such cliche-peddling. If Mr. Reagan does not respect the Arabs, he should at least respect himself.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

AL RA'I: At his press conference yesterday, President Reagan sose to defend and justify the criminal Israeli attack on the nuclear reactor and to portray it as a defensive operation. The only conclusion to be drawn from his statements is that the U.S. administration is determined to remain antagonistic to the Arah

Reagan's statements on the defensive nature of the Israeli attack on the Iraqi nuclear installations can be refuted by the following facts: 1. Iraq signed the Nuclear Treaty, Nonproliferation whereas Israel refused to do so. 2. The International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna has certified that the Iraqi nuclear reactor was inspected by a committee which included an American member and that its activities were found to be peaceful. 3. A U.S. State Department spokesman stated yesterday that Washington is convinced that Iraq was not producing a nuclear bomb.

If the State Department spokesman's statements are true, then Reagan's statements on the defensive aims of the Israeli attack are clearly untrue. Furthermore, the State Department spokesman admitted that the CIA passes on information to its friends in the Middle East and did not deny Israel's dependence on such information in carrying out its attack on the Iraqi nuclear reactor.

As for Reagan's statement that the Israeli attack has confirmed the need for a final Middle East settlement, the inherent conclusion indicates an attitude of provocative levity toward the Arabs as does his statement that he does not believe that Israel endangers peace in the region.

The Arabs have been seeking a just, comprehensive settlement for a long time; nor does this fact need to be borne out by aggression of Baghdad. It is the United States which has collaborated with Israel to obstruct the achievement of such a settlement and to force the Arabs into surrender and subjugation. If the Israeli air raid on Baghdad and the hrutal Israeli practices in the Occupied Territories and Lebanon do not constitute a threat to peace, then wherein lies the threat? We would like to ask Reagan how he would react to a statement claiming that a Soviet air raid on Washington would confirm the need for detente between the United States and the Soviet Union, if we are to follow his logic. It is time that the Arabs and Muslims confronted Washington with all their weapons.

AL DUSTOUR: Not even the Israelis themselves had expected President Reagan to defend and justify the Israeli attack on the Iraqi nuclear reactor so hlatantly by describing it as a defensive act. Reagan was expected to try and mitigate the ugliness of the Israeli crime by denouncing it and blaming Israel. Instead, he wholeheartedly stated U.S. support for it, thus increasing tension in the region.

Reagan was not satisfied with mouthing Menachem Begin's. excuses for the raid. He went further than that by blaming Iraq for not signing a cease-fire with Israel and participating in any attempts to achieve peace in the region. He claimed that this had worried Israel and prompted it into carrying out its attack, using U.S. aircraft. Reagan tried to shrug off the significance of Israel's use of these aircraft by claiming that the Congress is still trying to determine whether this constitutes a violation of the law specifying that these aircraft should be used for purely defensive

In spite of such obvious bias in favour of Israel, President Reagan tried to claim that Washington is eager for peace in the Middle East and that the Israeli attack was proof of the need for a final settlement in the region.

Reagan, however, has not left room for any hope for a positive U.S.role in arriving at a just comprehensive settlement, but has given conclusive proof that Arah-U.S. relations have reached a very serious lurning point. In face of such a blataut American challenge, it is incumbent on the Arabs to use all their weapons because they have no other

Israel and the U.S. Arms Export Control Ac

ON JUNE 7, 1981, the Israeli Air: Force used as many as 15 American-huilt warplanes to bomb a 70-megawatt nuclear research facility at Tuwaitha, Iraq, 17 kilometres from Baghdad. Later in the day, the U.S. government was notified by Israel of the attack. U.S. intelligence reported that the planes were U.S.-built. and the State Department made an announcement to that effect on

On May 28, a day after U.S. special envoy Philip Habib was recalled to Washington from his Middle East peace mission, American network television news programmes showed footage of Israeli Jets bombing Palestinian positions south of Beirut. The planes were identified as Israeli Phantom jets - aircraft built and supplied by the United States.

Such attacks would seem to be clear violations of the U.S. Arms Export Control Act (22 USC 2754), which states in Section 4 that U.S.-supplied arms are to be used "solely for internal security, for legitimate self-defence and to permit the recipient country to participate in regional or collective arrangements or measure consistent with the Charter of the United Nations..."

Israel also signed an agreement in 1952 - the Mutual Defence Assistance Agreement with the United States (TIAS 2765 July 23, 1952)"...not to undertake any act of aggression against any other state" using U.S. arms. Violation of this agreement or the AECA would mean a stop of U.S. arms shipments and military sales credits to the recipient country.

There is great concern in the Arab World and growing concern in the United States that Israel has over-stepped its commitment and violated both agreements in its recent intensified attacks on South Lebanon and in its attack of the Iraqi nuclear facility. The undeniable television scene of the Israeli planes on May 28 is but one of many possible Israeli violations. A State Department source says the agency has received "a number of Congressional requests for mformation" on possible Israeli violations of the AECA. On Capitol Hill, an effort is being made by the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Europe and the Middle East to hold hearings on U.S. policy toward Lebanon.
According to a Congressional aide, discussion of possible Israeli violations of the AECA and the 1952 agreement could come up in the hearings. Expected to testify are Philip Habib; Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs; Nicholas Veliotes and John Gunther Dean, outgoing U.S. ambassador to Lebanon.

The hearings will be held after Mr. Hahib returns from the second leg of his mission to the Middle East.

Israel, however, is effectively exempt from the AECA and the 1952 agreement, thanks to the work in 1976 of Senators Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.), Clifford Case (R-N.J.) and Hubert Humphery (D-Minn). They pushed through legislation changing the wording of the AECA which made it difficult to enforce automatically and subject to interpretation by the recipient country. The changes were made because supporters of Israel were concerned that U.S. arms to Israel could be stopped following the precedent set by the U.S. concerning the halt (1975-1979) of American weapons to Turkey after that country invaded Cyprus. That action was based on the original version of the AECA which stated in Section 3c that a country"shall be immediately ineligible" for arms purchases and deliveries if it used U.S. defence articles "in substantial violation" of the agreements. The president was required to determine if such to Coogress.

In the amended version of the AECA, bowever, the president is no longer required to determine if violations have occurred, but merely report promptly if possible violations "may have occurred." Congress was also allowed to share this responsibility. Effectively, it became the prerogative of the president and/or Congress whether or not to determine that a "substantial violation" had in fact occurred. A president could avoid the tough responsibility by reporting only that a violation "may. have occurred." This new phrasing allowed both the Congress and the president to stall on making a final determination. They could forever consider the meaning of "legitimate self-defence" in making that decision. Following the Israeli invasion of Lebanon in 1978 and a major Isracli assault on Lebanon in the summer of 1980, the issue of Israeli violations of the AECA surfaced in Congress and controversy centered then on whether or not Israel's definition of "legitimate self-defence" was consistent with U.S. law. The State Department, delegated authority by the president to make that decision, used the wording of the new AECA to state simply that violations "may have occurred." The apparent reason was that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, determined that his new policy of "pre-emptive" strikes, in addition to the previous policy of "retaliatory" strikes, did constitute "legitimate self-defence." This reasoning was closely echoed recently by U.S. National Security Adviser Richard Allen in a television interview in which he justified Israeli raids in South Lebanon as "legitimate hot pursuit." Soon after Mr. Allen's remarks, Israel intensified its attacks on Palestinian positions in Lebanon. . Israel attempts to justify its "pre-emptive" strikes on the need to reduce the threat of Palestinian guerrilla incursions from Lehanon into Israel. Israeli officials make wide use of American media to

When the upcoming House subcommittee hearing deals with the AECA, a major question that need to be addressed is whether the balance of statistics justifies the Israeli interpretation that its strikes in Lebanon are "legitimate self-defence".

Israel's Aloneness

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following commentary by columnist Stephen S. Rosenfeld appeared in the June 12 Washington Post under the above

MENACHEM BEGIN invites us to discuss whether a country believing that its vital interests are imperiled should wait for the blade to fall and, specifically, whether an "eoemy's" nuclear weapons would constitute the sort of threat justifying any cost or risk to remove. This is the Begin que-

But it is, I believe, the wrong question, or the secondary question, though it comes naturally to many Israelis, and not only them. To give it political and moral rank is to be enfolded by the fateful weh of passioo and policy that Begin has spun in his four-year term.

Of course, a country feeling that it faces an overwhelming threat to its supreme interests will act, if it has an ounce of will remanining. The real question for Israel, however, is not whether it will act in straits that are or that threaten to become depressive, but whether it will do everything it can to keep out of such a fix and whether, once in one, it will do what it must to get out. This question Begin rushes

What needs to be explained first of all is wby Israel finds itself in circumstances where it feels so endangered, so isolated, so bereft of friends and so devoid of altematives that its lone recourse is an action as extreme and fraught with unpredictable consequences as the strike.

Begin's explanation flows, implicitly and sometimes explicitly. from a kind of historical or evencosmic anti-Semitism that compels Israel is to be ever vigilant and self-reliant and ever leery of being trapped by conventional selflimiting rules, lest Israel's rights or its very survival be called into donbt. The world's reluctance to accept his judgment of the Palestinians is all the evidence he requires to validate this view. Criticism of the raid is merely icing on the cake.

No student of history, and certainly few Jews, will dismiss Begin's evocation of anti-Semitism out of hand. But a great many people, and I among them, reject it as an acceptable basis for public or on Capitol Hill. The Israeli policy. One does not have to believe that the world has been cured of anti-Semitism to cha-Henge a view that leads Israel, a · small, exposed and dependent

For there is another, simpler, less ominous explanation, though one harder in a way for Israelis to handle, for Israel's virtually unbearable condition of loneliness, It is that Israel has yet to find itself the will to say that if and as the Palestinians accept its national claims - which they have not yet done - it will accept theirs.

Self-determination is the century's most universally acclaimed right, and the Israelis, insisting on it and already enjoying it for themselves, deoy it to the people whose destiny is most closely linked to their own. Begin would deny it even if the Palestinians completely flip-flopped and signed on the dotted line.

It follows that Israel will be served better by a policy of gradual stuttering accommodation to Palestinian nationalism - or by a posture of accommodation that put a hurden of meeting Israel halfway oo the Palestinians -- thao by the considerable peril and instability. But that's life in the Middle East. It sure beats the threat of extinction Israel believes it faces now.

Perhaps the most serious consequence of the Begin policy is that it has histred Israel's line between self-defence and advcoturism. It should be obvious that Israel, facing hostility on all borders but one, has a special need not to have a shadow thrown over the legitimacy of steps it takes in its defence. In the West Bank, in Lebanon and now in Iraq, however, Begin has ... compromised the respect that sustains Israel in both its interior morale and its international standing. He has made it easy for Israel's fair-weather friends to look the other way, and he has made it hard for its single last foul-weather friend, the United States, to stand confidently at its with the right kind of support factors

Bani-Sadr supporters boycott Majlis debate

TEHRAN, June 17 (R) — The Majlis, Iran's national assembly, today voted to discuss ground rules for an impeachment debate against President Abol Hassan Bani-Sadr after a boycott by his supporters failed to prevent a quorum necessary for a vote.

The session began with only 163 deputies present in the 217-member.assembly, 17 fewer than the required quorum of 180.

The Majlis has 270 seats, but 53 were vacant because of electoral disputes, the war with Iraq and civil disorders in some constituencies.

Majlis sources said about 20 supporters of the president, who faces a threatened debate on his political competence and possible dismissal by Ayatoliah Ruhollah Khomeini, signed the register to indicate their presence but did not enter the Later, more deputies -- mostly mullahs (clergymen) who support the government -- were found and Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani announced that 181 deputies were present.

He called for a vote on technicalnies of the proposed impeachment debate and 135 deputies stood up, shouted "Allah Akbar" (God is great) as a sign of approval and sat down again.

The Mailis then began line-by-line discussion of the rules for the debate.

Meanwhile, the revolutionary prosecutor of Tehran called on the public today "to stay on the scene and be ready on the streets of the city ... to frustrate any plot hatched by United States age-

Israeli survivors settle case with Air France

TEL AVIV, June 17 (A.P.) - Israeli survivors of the 1976 hijacking of an Air France jettiner to Uganda have reached an out-of-court settlement with the airliner for a seven-figure sum, the Jerusalem Post newspaper reported today. Air France's Tel Aviv office declined to comment on the report. The Post said the accord covered claims of 67 former hotages and heirs of the four killed when Israeli commandos stormed the Entebbe airport in a rescue operation. The Post said the settlement was reached on May 14, after five years of litigation in which the former hostages charged that tighter Air France security could have prevented the hijacking. The Air France Airbus with 245 passengers was hijacked on June 27, 1976 by German and Palestinian Arab commandos in Athens. The Post said the specifics of the accord were being kept secret at Air France's demand, because it did not want the settlement to influence other foreign claims agianst the com-

Aden demands release of 3

ADEN, June 17 (R) - South Yemen said last night that three of its nationals had been kidnapped from a border village by the authorities in oeighbouring Sultanate of Oman. An official statement carried by the Aden news agency demanded the return of the three men and accused Oman of attempting to provoke armed clashes with South Yemen to pave the way for intervention in the region by imperialist forces. Oman had said that six armed members of South Yemen's popular army had infiltrated across the border at the weekend and three of them had been captured. Relations between leftist South Yemen and pro-Western Oman are strained and border incidents are not uncommon.

In spite of mounting unemployment

Thatcher sticks to monetarist policy

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher will stick firmly to her tough monetarist policy in spite of mounting unemployment, government sources said today after a twohour special cahinet meeting on economic strategy.

Since taking office two years ago, the government has held down public spending and sought to restrict the money supply in a fight against double-digit inflation, which it sees as the main threat to the nation's economic recovery.

But opposition parties, trade unions, and several influential members of the ruling Conservative Party have urged steps to hring down the johless total, now at 2,558,000 or 10.6 per ceot of the workforce and the worst since the 1930s.

Today's special cahinet meeting was arranged because ministers who dislike the government's hardline economic policy-the moderates known as "wets" according to current British political slang-had protested they could not make their views known. Much of Mrs. Thatcher's economic strategy discussion usually takes place in an inner cahinet of ministers who support her.

According to informed sources, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Sir Geoffrey Howe, told the cahinet more cuts in government spending would be needed to defeat inflation.

Some ministers were expected to resist this, among them Employment Secretary James Prior. one of the "wets". He outlined an alternative strategy which could ease unemployment, but the sources said those wanting a change in government policy were in the

The opposition Labour Party has made unemployment the main theme of its attack on the governmeot. Its leader, Michael Foot. told a trade union conference today that Mrs. Thatcher's ecooomic policies had proved to be a hopeless, unqualified, unredeemed catestrophe.

Five hundred johless workers last month marched 300 miles (480 km) from Liverpool to London in protest over the lack of employment opportunities.

Former Conservative Prime

Mrs. Thatcher

Minister Edward Heath has also joined the chorus of dissent. He spoke passionately in parliament recently of his fears that the Conservatives could become the party of unemployment.

But in a strong speech last night Mrs. Thatcher said there would be no change in government policy. She quoted United States soldier Lloyd Williams, who said on arriving in France in 1918: "Retreat. hell no, we only just got here". She told a dinner of leading ind-costs.

Under the government's monetarist approach, along similar lines to that of the Reagan administration in the United States. inflation has come down to 12 per cent from a peak in May last year of 21.9 per cent. But Britain's deep recession has thrown more than a million people out of work in the past year, and ministers admit the jobless total is likely to rise further.

According to treasury experts the bottom of the recession has been reached and inflation is now under control.

Mrs. Thatcher said last night that living standards would have to fall if the economy was to recover, and figures published today showed that earnings in the past vear had risen by 14 per cent, against a 15.7 per cent rise in living

OPEC discusses long-term strategy

GENEVA, June 17 (R) — Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmad Zaki Yamani presides over an OPEC meeting here today to discuss long-term pricing strategy, three weeks after forcing other OPEC states to freeze prices by creating a

#0:ld शो होग्रह The six-nation meeting takes place against the background of OPEC's repeated failure to unify prices. Saudi Arabia insists a unified price structure is essential for any long-term plan.

Sheikh Yamani advocates moderate price increases to ensure that'. real oil income is not eroded while cushioning consumers against sudden price shocks.

A ministerial meeting of all 13 OPEC (Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries) nations here on May 23 and 24 ended with some countries agreeing to freeze prices and cut production to mop up the glut and ease oressure on prices.

Sheikh Yamani says his kingdom created the surplus by over-producing to force other OPEC states to unify prices, which range from Saudi Arabia's $32 a barrel to the $41 price of African producers.

Sheikh Yamani told Reuters that he and Venezuelan Oil Minister Humberon Calderon Berti were the only ministers attending the two-day talks, which also include representatives of Iraq, Iran, Kuwait and Algeria.

The ministerial meeting last month asked the strategy committee to review its findings and report back as soon as possible. Its work dates to a Saudi initiative in 1978 to coordinate steady quarterly rises in oil prices.

Sheikh Yamani presented a draft strategy last September which would have linked price rises to inflation, Western economic growth and fluctuations in a basket of currencies.

But Algeria, Libya and Iran argued for steeper increases based on Western inflation plus the increase in the cost of goods imported by OPEC members from the

A majority of OPEC states tayoured the Saudi formula at a meeting in Vienna last year, but the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war three days later forced cancellation of an OPEC summit in Baghdad at which it might have been adopted.

OPEC experts said slack demand--it dropped by seven per cent in 1980 and is still going down-could force the organisation to moderate its price rises for a while.

Too fast a rise could push major oil-consuming countries to switch more rapidly to alternative energy sources, they said.

The long-term committee also discusses aid to the Third World. Algeria and Venezuela have pro-pased that OPEC forms a development bank with $20 billion capital, while Iraq wants a joint fund to which OPEC would contribute according to increases in its exports to the Third World.

Saudi Arabia is also thought favour financial aid to OPEC members which suffered as a result of joint decisions to cut pro-duction.

Brighter outlook in U.S. business survey

WASHINGTON, June 17 (A.P.) - Business optimism about the economic climate in the United States and the government's ability to fight inflation has taken a sharp upturn in the latest quarters husiness survey conducted by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

In the spring poll of 1,027-business executives, released yesterday 54 per cent said the general business climate was becoming more favourable, compared with 30 per cent who said it was becoming less

The percentage of executives expressing an optimistic outlook has risen dramatically since the spring of 1980 when only three per cent of the respondents said they felt positive about the economy.

The business community's rating of the government's handling of inflation also has surged upwards since President Ronald Ra inflation also has surged upwards since President Ronald Regin took office. In the spring survey, 57 per cent of the executives said the government was doing a good job in fighting inflation and 40 per coats said the government was doing only a fair job.

In the winter 1981 survey, taken in the early days of the Rangua administration, 35 per cent said the government was doing a good job

The spring survey also showed that the average executive believes there is better than an even chance that inflation will persist above 10 per cent for the nest 12 munths.

High Indian inflation rate poses threat of hunger <sup>7</sup> By Ajoy Sen

NEW DELHI --- A fresh bout of inflation is posing a growing threat of hunger to India's 330 million poor people although the country is having bumper food harvests. The 16-month-old government key products such as foodgrains, of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is having trouble explaining the paradox in view of her election promise to give the country "a government that works'. Officials said the inflation rate over the last 12 mooths was 17 per ceot, compared with 20 per cent in the previous year which was mar-ked by a disastrous drought.

However, the official wholesale price index for the first quarter of 1981 rose by five per cent from the previous three-month figure, and sugar, edible oils and food were among those most affected.'

Even moderate price rises can cause problems for the poor, with no savings and very low incomes for spending on food. Economists say nearly half of India's 680 million inhabitants already live below the poverty line as defined in terms of food needs.

The price rises have occurred despite good crop prospects this year. The country is now reaping a bumper foodgrain harvest officially estimated at 133 million tonnes, and the authorities expect sugar production in the year to October to rise by 33 per cent to 5.2 millioo tonnes.

Yet retail sugar prices are now as much as $1.13 a kilogramme (50 cents a pound), having risen by up to 25 cents a kilo (11 cents a pound) in the last few weeks.

The government is resisting claims by its employees for wage rises to compensate for cost of living increases because it feels this would further fuel inflation. Inflation was lower last year, and wholesale prices even dropped in November and December, partly because of the combination of liberal imports, comfortable foreign exchange reserves and large grain stocks.

The renewed inflationary surge in the officially administered prices of foodgrains, petroleum products, steel, coal and transport Officials say prices will decline as oroduction nicks up under the impact of tax concessions for business proposed in the 1981-82 hudget, and with continued control of the money supply and bank But some economists feel that an inefficient state-run dis-tributioo system, with erratic movement of stocks from government stores to the shops, will make inflation difficult to control in the coming months. An official of the Federation of

Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry was also pessimistic about the outlook for inflation in view of large budget deficits of since January is partly due to rises about $4.5 hillion in fiscal 1981trading and stocking of essential

Mr. Hassan Saudi, secretary of the federation, the tournaments help to maintain the players' fitness. The results of the tournaments also help in the choice of the national team, which has started to take part in internstional events.

The first international encounter for the team was in Kuwait last April, where the members played against the Kuwait Oil Company and the Kuwait National Squash Team.

The next contest will be on Aug. 25 in Pakistan, where the feam will take part in the Asia Toumament. This will be followed by participation in the International World Tournament to be held in Stockholm on Sept. 15. The federation has also called for the 1982 Asia Tournament to be held n Amman.

In preparation for these matches the federation organises intensive daily training for the eight members of the national team. Mr. Sardar Khan, an international trainer from Pakistan, has been engaged by the federation to pro-vide the necessary training, which lasts approximately six bours a

The Jordan Squash Federation was established in 1979 by the Youth Organisation with the aim of promoting squash in Jordan and organising the game. The pre-sident of the federation, Captain Mr. Saudi.

Jawdat Abdei Munem, an Alia pilot, was the dynamic force behind the formation. He is also vice president of the Asian Squash Federation.

From its inception, the federation has developed with the ardent backing, both morally and financially, of His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan, who is its honorary president and a regular and skillful player himself.

The advancement which the game can make in Jordan is, however, limited at the moment because of the insufficient number of courts. There are only eight courts in the whole of Jordan; four at the Sports City, two at Jordan University and two belonging to the army which are not accessible to the public.

The federation's dream, and that of many squash players, is a squash centre envisaged at the Sports City. "There are no definite plans to the moment, but we'll be working towards it," said

Q.I - As South, vulnerable, yon hold: ♦ Void ♥ 9764 ♦ AKJ42

+AQ96 The hidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 0 3 4 4 V Pass

What action do you take? A .- What started off as perhaps only a fair hand has grown in stature. If North is good enough to introduce a new suit voluntarily at the four-level and you have fourcard support, you must be safe at a five-level contract; evan a grand slam could be in the cards. Start off with a cue-bid of four spades to see what partner's reaction is.

Q.2-East-West vulnerable, as South you hold: ♦A96 ♥KQ ♦AJ964 ♣J104 Tha bidding has proceeded: East South West North Dble. Pass 1 + 1 🛡

What action do you take? A .- Face the facts. You have a minimum takeont double. so you have said all that you should for the momeat. It would be poor tactics to raise to two spades, since that would give partner the impression that you have four spades and a stronger hand. If partner is not broke, he can act again.

Q.3 - East-West vulnerable, as Sonth you hold: ♦Q10642 ♥92 ♦A2 ♦K752 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ ◊ ♦ 2 ♥ 3 ♦ 4 ♥

What do you bid now?

A. - You bid your limit when you made your overcall-any further action is up to partner. Since he knows that you have some defensive values, he is in a much better position to decida whether he wants to defend or sacrifice.

Dble. Pass ? What action do you take?

A .- Your preemptive hid warned partner not to expect much from you in the way of defensive strength. Thus, he is doubling virtually on his own hand. Your king of spades is going to come as a pleasant surprise to him, and the penalty could be substantial. Pass-a bid of five hearts would be an unwarranted usurpation of authori-

What is your opening hid? A .- Your hand is worth 13 points-11 in high cards and two in distribution. Therefore, you should open the hidding with one spade. Even if you play weak two-hids, this hand is too strong for even a vulnerable weak two in first or second seat. Partnar will never expect that you have such a super maximum, so you might possibly miss a

What action do you take? A. - There is a temptation to tell partner about your spade support, but it should be curbed. You have a dead minimum opening bid and flat distribution, so game is out of the question. Besides. clubs must be your best partscore contract. You are certainly playing in a 4-4 or better fit if you stay in clubs, while spades might be 4-3.

Nairobi doubtful for sports venue

NAIROBI, June 17 (R) - Ahraham Ordia, the president of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa (SCSA), today expressed doubt about the fourth all-Africa games being held by 1983. The games, Africa's greatest festival of sport, are supposed to take place every four years and were due to be held in Nairobi in 1982. But last year Kenya pulled out because of lack of facilities. "It has not been possible to find an alternative venue to Nairobi for the fourth games. I do not know how far the Secretary General (Amadou Lamine Bs of Senegal) has gone in this respect and I do not know whether we shall be able to hold the games by 1983, Ordia said. He added that he would be forced to turn to the countries who have organised the games before to do so again and "with due humility I have my own country in mind." Nigeria organised the second games in 1973.

Kremlin lashes out at Reagan for 'ignorance' and 'slander'

MOSCOW, June 17 (A.P.) — The official Soviet news agency, reacting quickly and bitterly to President Reagan's Tuesday news conference, has charged that the president "grossly slandered" Soviet policies and showed "ignorance" and "misunderstanding,"

'He besmirched in every way the socialist system and grossly slandered Soviet foreign and domestic policies," TASS said. "Displaying his complete ignorance of philosophy and misunderstanding the historical processes taking place in the world, he even tried to sound like an oracle and predicted the speedy end of communism." Mr. Reagan said at the news conference that "Communism an

TASS, in a report from Washington by correspondent Yuri Levchenko, charged that Mr. Reagan, "striving to distract U.S. public attention from the irreconcilable contradictions of U.S. capitalism, which is going through a grave social and economic crisis... made special efforts to play down the growing appeal of the socialist system."

The Soviet report said Mr. Reagan "confirmed anew that the Washington administration intends to continue pursuing its dangerous course on aggravating international tensions."

Reagan honours Canadian envoy who got 6 Americans out of Iran

WASHINGTON, June 17 (A.P.) - President Ronald Reagan, saluting the "courage and ingenuity" displayed in the help Canada gave six Americans in Tehran last year, has awarded a congressional gold medal to the Canadian ambassador who masterminded their escape from Iran. Kenneth Taylor, Canada's ambassador in Iran and now the Canadian consul general in New York, told the president: "We're very fortunate and we relisb that, . cherish, our neighbourhood relationship with you."

Mr. Taylor was given the medal during a ceremony in the White House · Rose Garden. ## Saharan dispute leads. to fisticuffs at OAU

NAIROBL June 17 . A.P.) - Morocean delegates and Algerianbacked Polisario observers traded punches in a running fight today outside the hall where foreign ministers of the 50-nation Organisation of African Unity (OAU) meeting which opened on Mon-

Club-wielding police broke up the fighting after several minutes and arrested two Moroccan diplomats and one Polisario observer. The dispute between Morocco and Polisario guerrillas over the mineral-rich Western Sahava is one of the most difficult issues confronting OAU heads of state when they meet here next week. Polisario guerrillas have waged a five-year-old struggle for control of the former Spanish Sahara. After Spain pulled out in late 1975, the Sahara was annexed by Morocco and Mauritania, but Mauritania later signed a separate peace with the guerrillas, leaving Morocco to continue war alone against the Polisario.

Moroccan diplomat Ainin Maelainein said the fighting started when a Polisario observer insulted the Moroccan diplomats "by saving Morocco is occupying territory that is theirs. Mr. Maelainein said one Moroccan retorted by calling the Polsario "mercenaries." Evewitnesses weren't sure who threw the first punch but the fight ranged over a wide area of the lounge and bar before police arrived. Several delegates from other countries tried unsuccessfully to hold both sides apart.

Mr. Maelainein identified the twn Moroccans taken into police custody as Hasan Alom, chief of cabinet of the ministry of foreign affairs, and Yousef Lamrani, chief of cabinet of the secretary of state for cooperation.

Salvador has nothing to report other than violence and killings

SAN SALVADOR, June 17 (A.P.) - Twenty bodies, many of them decapitated, were found throughout the country yesterday, the government said, and army anti-guerrilla operations were reported in five areas of the country.

No group claimed responsibility for the slayings and beheadings, but police said extreme right-wing groups are known to decapitate their victims - leftists or suspected leftists. Five of the bodies were found here in the capital, three each in the northern town of Aguilares and in the southern town of Zacatecoluca and the rest in Santa Ana in the north and San Miguel, in the east.

Four of the bodies were not beheaded and bore bullet wounds, leading police to speculate they were violaters of the 5 p.m. - 5 a.m. curfew and were shot by the military.

Since the Oct. 15, 1979 coup that toppled rightist President Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero and brought the U.S.-backed civilian military junta to power, an estimated 23,000 persons have been killed in fighting between the military, right-wing terrorist squads and leftist guerrillas, El Salvador's human rights commission says. Residents in the northern province of Chalatenango, for two years a guerrilla stronghold, said by telephone heavy fighting was going on between leftists in the small town of Arcatao, near the Honduran border, but there was no comment from the government. Elsewhere, the militairy concluded a 12-day assault on the volcand of Chenchontepec near San Vicente, 144 kilometres east of here and moved its forces to confront leftist guerrilla positions in La Union, 240 kilometres east; Morazan, 160 kilometres northeast and Cabanas, 100 kilometres north. Special counter-insurgency troops were also sent to another volcano, in Guazapa, where guerrillas have resisted five government cleanup operations this week, the army said.

Final figures given by the army on the Chenchontepec operation, characterised by a defence ministry spokesman as "a success," said 225 guerrillas and 14 soldiers died during the operation, but the guerrillas said initially they lost only a handful of men while killing more than 100 government troops. Independent confirmation of the reports was not possible.

U.S. Navy 'categorically' denies Nimitz crash was due to drug use

WASHINGTON, June 17 (A.P.) — U.S. Navy Secretary John Lehman has denied categorically" that drug use had anything to do with crash of a radar-jamming plane on the deck of the aricraft carrier Nimitz last month.

"I can categorically state that drug use or abuse did not contribute to the tragic crash," Mr. Lehman said in a letter to Representative Joseph Addabbo, a New York Democrat. Mr. Addabbo has claimed that antopsies showed most of the U.S. Navy and Marine men killed in the crash of an EA-6B during a night landing May 26 had been taking drugs.

"There was no trace whatsoever of any kind of drug in the recovered remains of the air crew," according to a navy statement. The bodies of two of the missing marine crewmen were recovered. Asked what the autopsies showed so far as the members of the deck crew who were killed, a navy spokesman said. "This is still under investigation." In his letter to Mr. Addabbo, Mr. Lehman said. "I have personal knowledge of flight-deck operations and can tell you that these crews are well-supervised and superbly trained."

The navy secretary also said, "If an individual does not appear able to perform his duties in a professional manner, his supervisors will remove him from the flight deck immediately." In addition to the 14 dead, 48 Nimitz crewmen were injured in the worst carrier landing crash in U.S. navy records dating back about 28 years.

UNITED NATIONS, June 17 (A.P.) — U.S. Ambassador Joano Kirkpatrick indicated today that she wanted the U.N. Security Council to be unanimous in its action in the case of Israel's air strike against an Iraqi nuclear reactor.
"A speech is much less important than finding a consensus resolution," she told reporters. They had asked when she would speak in the council's current debate on Iraq's complaint against the June 7 hombing of the reactor-near Baghdad, which Israel said it did to head off production of a nuclear weapon.

Mrs, Kirkpatrick did not say when she would speak. But she did say she had just had a conference with Iraqi Foreign Minister Sa'doun Hammadi, her second in as many days.

She was interviewed outside the council chamber on a luncbeon
